“On the Possible”

Professor Shahid Rahman, Universidade de Lille

The aim is to briefly present the standard view on the possible by Kripke, including the problems of this frame with epistemic contexts. Then I will also briefly mention Hintikka's proposal, that somehow intends to capture some of Husserl's insights, and finally I will present a very recent alternative, inspired in Kant and Hintikka, where the possible and the concept of belief are studied from their role in constituting judgements.
